

and why?

Q: The original Victorian Style Riding Hat has always done well for me, every year I make a small batch and they always sell out... I really should consider making it a stock line!

I think it's because it appeals to the girls in the Goth scene, all black, goes with anything and because I still keep my costs reasonable, last year they retailed for £40.

A: What has been your personal favourite that you have made to date?

Q: That is such a hard one for me to make a decision on... the problem I have with making so many lovely hats is that I end up with a hat box full of ones for me.

It's a case of one for me... 3 for the website!! If I had to pick one though... then it has to be the Betty Pill Box... a new design for me this year based on a vintage hat pattern.

It came together so perfectly and I found amazing vintage 50's plastic bows to finish off the hats. I was just so pleased with the finished piece!!

A: Do you plan on branching out into any other accessory or remain specialising in hats?

Q: I love making hats... it's definitely my passion!

I'm currently working on a vintage bridal range of hats and fascinators.

I'm considering making some different hair accessories such as flowers and 50's style head scarves.

I also collect Blythe Dolls (I have 3 to date) and want to create even smaller miniature versions of my hats for Blythe!

A: Do you do custom orders?

Q: YES of course! I have just finished a commission for a customer to wear to Ladies Day at Royal Ascot, that was such a thrill for me!

Prior to that I was commissioned to make a Purple Victorian Style Riding Hat for a customer to wear to the Colour of Magic Premiere in London.

I'll do custom work for anyone. I really enjoy creating one of a kind pieces, just contact me with your ideas at:
